ABSTRACT

This guide is designed as a comprehensive reference on financial assistance available to foreign nationals to study, teach, carry out research, or pursue other educational objectives in the United States. It provides information on agencies that offer awards for these purposes, citing over 600 scholarships, grants, and fellowships available from public and private sources in the U.S. and abroad, including governments, foundations, corporations, associations, research centers, libraries, and other agencies. Introductory sections describe the guide's organization and use, provide suggestions for planning U.S. study, list publications and Websites that provide additional information, contain statistics on geographic patterns of international study, and provide a map of the United States. The first major section cites sources of financial support of U.S. study by foreign nationals and is divided into subsections covering: all areas of the world, sub-Saharan Africa, Asia/Oceania, Eastern Europe, Western Europe, the Middle East and North Africa, and the Western Hemisphere. Within each of these subsections, aid sources are listed by country. The second major section lists undergraduate and graduate institutions in the U.S., with addresses and some program information. Lists of overseas educational advising centers and Institute of International Education member organizations are appended. Indexes include: administering and sponsoring agencies; funding resources by level and types of award; funding resources by field of study, amount of support; funding resources with special conditions; destination institutions; destinations in the United States; and countries of origin. Acknowledgments

IIE gratefully acknowledges support from the Ford Foundation for Funding for US Study, as part of a project to increase women's participation in international scholarship programs.

IIE Books thanks the College Board for licensing the data in the sections on US colleges and universities and overseas educational advising centers. US higher education information is from the annual College Board Annual Survey of Colleges Database. Overseas educational advising centers are from the 1995/96 Directory of Overseas Educational Advising Centers. Contact College Board Publications, Box 886, New York NY 10101 for price and order information on these two useful resources.

Appreciation to the Educational Information Service Director (Evelyn Levinson) and advising staff of the US-Israel Educational Foundation, Fulbright—Tel Aviv for suggestions of additional grants to be described in this book.

Thanks to Fulbright staff at both USIA and IIE for their guidance and information in relation to the Fulbright Program worldwide.

The Institute of International Education

The Institute of International Education (IIE) is the largest US higher educational exchange agency.

IIE builds international understanding through educational exchanges that reach nearly all the world's nations. Many IIE programs further international development goals.

A nonprofit organization with over 600 college and university members in the US and abroad, IIE has provided information on educational exchange to higher education and the public for over 75 years.

USIA Fulbright Program

The Institute assists the US Information Agency (USIA) in the conduct of the graduate Fulbright Program for both US and foreign students at the predoctoral level.

US students enrolled in a US college or university must apply through a campus Fulbright Program Adviser. US citizens not formally enrolled in a higher educational institution may request applicant information on USIA Fulbright Program grants from IIE's US Student Programs Office.

Foreign nationals who wish to apply for financial assistance through the Fulbright Program to study in the United States must apply through the binational Fulbright Commission or designated US diplomatic post in their home nation. IIE cannot accept applications from foreign nationals for the USIA Fulbright Program.

Program Administration

IIE manages 200 programs which benefit approximately 10,000 men and women from nearly 150 nations each year. The Institute is an independent nonprofit agency. It organizes international projects at the request of sponsors such as the US Information Agency, US Agency for International Development, foundations, corporations, universities, foreign governments and international organizations.

Purposes and Participants

IIE administers international education, training and research activities to fulfill goals developed in consultation with its sponsor organizations. Purposes can vary from the institutional development of a university in an emerging nation to multinational corporate staff development, from short-term training to long-term research on world food needs. Half of those assisted are foreign students pursuing US graduate degrees. The Institute also assists large numbers of US students, foreign senior scholars, scientists, artists, corporate executives and community leaders each year.

Services to Higher Education and the Community

IIE provides educational advising services worldwide that assist 200,000 individuals annually. IIE publications are standard guides to international study. IIE research reports provide a substantive basis for policy choices in the field of international exchange.

US Offices

US offices are located in New York, the Institute's central office; Washington, DC; Chicago, Denver, Houston and San Francisco. Students and educators visiting New York City are encouraged to make use of the IIE International Education Information Center in planning international study. The center is located at IIE headquarters at 809 United Nations Plaza, and is open Tuesday through Thursday from 11 to 4 except for major holidays. The center cannot provide research assistance by phone or letter.

Overseas Offices

IIE overseas offices are located in Bangkok, Thailand; Hong Kong; Mexico City, Mexico; Budapest, Hungary; and Moscow, Russia. In Indonesia, IIE is represented by the International Education Foundation in Jakarta.

How to Use This Book

Funding for US Study: A Guide for International Students and Professionals is a comprehensive reference source on financial assistance available for foreign nationals to pursue educational objectives in the US. The book was compiled by the Institute of International Education, the largest US higher educational exchange agency. The Institute is a nonprofit organization with over 600 US college and university member institutions.

The book provides information on agencies that offer awards for foreign nationals to study, teach, carry out research or pursue other educational objectives in the US. Funding for US Study offers the most relevant data on over 600 fellowships, grants, travel grants, scholarships and paid internships geared to all levels of post-secondary education and research: undergraduate, graduate/postgraduate, postdoctoral and professional.

Funding for US Study is intended to be an information resource on scholarships, grants and fellowships available from public and private sources in the US and abroad: governments, foundations, corporations, associations, research centers, libraries and other agencies.

Foreign nationals may apply directly to these grant and fellowship programs if they meet eligibility requirements. Typically these grant programs do not require special nomination by home governments, institutions or international organizations. Programs of this type exist, but they are not the focus of this book, which is intended to identify grants and fellowships that are generally accessible to foreign nationals.

Using This Book

The information in the award entries is based on a survey conducted from the summer of 1995 through the winter of 1996. Questionnaires were sent to more than 10,000 US and foreign government agencies, organizations, foundations, societies, corporations, US colleges and universities, foreign schools and universities, arts groups and other award-granting agencies.

Many respondents returned completed questionnaires accompanied by brochures or other printed materials, giving a fairly comprehensive picture of their agency and awards. In other cases, less complete information was provided. For this reason, the listings vary in length and detail. When possible, IIE followed up by phone or letter to obtain essential details.

IIE has tried to make the information contained in this book as accurate and useful as possible. Bear in mind, however, that information gathering sometimes took place before award decisions for the current year were announced. For this reason, it is a good idea to use this book as a general resource for locating applicable awards. Final and full information on any award must be obtained directly from the administering agency.

To derive maximum benefit from Funding for US Study, be sure to read this section carefully. It explains the overall organization of the book, how individual entries are organized, and the terms used in the entry descriptions.

Overall Organization

Award entries are organized first by geographical regions of nationality/residency: Africa, South of the Sahara, Asia and Oceania, Eastern Europe, Western Europe, the Middle East and North Africa, and the Western Hemisphere. Each world region is subdivided alphabetically by country and then by city. Within each city section, award entries are alphabetized by name of administering agency.

In addition to specific country and city listings of foreign nationality/residency, there is a "Worldwide" section for awards that are open to foreign nationals from more than one world region, or that may be used by recipients from anywhere in the world. Similarly, there are "More Than One Country" listings at the beginning of each regional section. Remember to consult these sections in addition to listings for specific home cities and countries.

The book also provides useful information in its introduction and its indexes. The section you are now using provides specific information on how to use award descriptions to identify awards of interest to you. The following section, "Planning for US Study," offers overall guidance on planning study and research in the US, as well as general guidance on seeking financial aid.

Indexes are:

Administering and Sponsoring Agencies
Funding Resources by Level and Type of Award
Funding Resources by Field of Study
Funding Resources by Amount of Support
Funding Resources with Special Conditions
(e.g. opportunities for women, minorities, etc.)
Destination Institutions
Destination in the United States
Countries of Origin

Sample Entry

The sample entry describes an award that does not exist. In fact, the entry could not exist because it offers information under virtually all headings available as options in our database. No award entry offers quite that much information, although a few come close. The advantage of this mythical entry is that it allows us to provide an example of the many different kinds of useful data you may encounter in using this book, and to explain what they all mean.

Major headings are printed in boldface. Subheads under the major headings are printed in italic type. The paragraphs below explain the terms used under each major heading in a program description, using the sample entry as an example.

Program Number and Award Title

0699 Fellowships for Research in Women's Studies

Each entry begins with its program number, followed by the award title.

Program numbers are in consecutive order throughout the book. All indexes are to the program number, rather than to the page number on which the program entry appears.

Award title is the second item of information to appear. If an agency administers more than one award, and information was provided by the agency for each individual award, they are numbered alphabetically by title under the agency's name.

Administering Agency and Sponsoring Institution

Administered by FOUNDATION FOR HUMANISTIC STUDIES
Sponsored by JAPAN-AMERICAN FUND FOR WOMEN SCHOLARS

The name of the agency that administers the award is the next item of information. Entries may list up to three administrative agencies. In some cases, a consortium co-administers an award. If there are more than three administrative agencies, the agency name used in the entry and the index is the consortium name.

The name of the sponsoring institution(s) follows the administering agency if the award sponsor (funder) is different from, or in addition to, the administering agency.

A listing of administering and sponsoring agencies can be found in Index I: Administering and Sponsoring Agencies.

Award

Award • Fellowship; Awarded on the basis of merit
Offered to: Individual
Annual number of awards: 10
Awards to foreign nationals for US use: 10
Number of applicants: 20
Duration: 9 months
Date effective: Start of academic year
Purpose: To encourage original research about women in the humanities

The type of award appears first under this heading, indicating whether an award is a fellowship, assistantship, grant, scholarship, internship with stipend/salary, travel grant, or other type of grant for a specific purpose. In some cases, a general entry was provided by the administering agency to describe more than one type of award offered. This information can also be found here.

If either factor is the main criteria for granting the award, following the type of award will be the statement, "Awarded on the basis of financial need" or "Awarded on the basis of merit."

Offered to describes whether the award is open to individuals, groups (e.g., research team), or institutions. If the award is open to more than one of these categories, the other options are mentioned in Other criteria under the heading Eligibility below.

The total number of awards given annually, the number or percentage of these awards that typically go to foreign nationals for US use, and the number of applicants in the most recent year in which the award was given comes next. Data is provided whenever possible, although these statistics were not available for many of the entries.

Duration indicates the period of time that the award is intended to cover. This is followed by the date or general time of year when the award becomes effective.

The last item under Award is Purpose. Each award states the purpose for which the award is to be used, when that information was provided.

Location

Location • Geographic region: US-Wide
Institution: Participating US universities and research institutions

Noted here are the Geographic regions that apply to the use of the award. "US-Wide" means the award can be used anywhere in the US the recipient chooses. Also listed are the names of institutions where the award may be used, or institutional restrictions that apply.

Fields of Study

Fields of study • Humanities/Humanistic Studies; Women's Studies
Emphasis on: Women in Literature

Up to fifteen fields of study offered by the program are listed. Some programs provide opportunities in more than fifteen fields of study. In these cases, "General Studies" appears as the subject listing to indicate the availability of a wide range of courses.

The National Center for Education Statistics' Classification of Instructional Programs (CIP) codes was used as the authority file for assigning subject categories. For areas of study that are the focus of, or are key to, the program, and may not have been part of the CIP file, this information is included under the Emphasis on subhead-

ing. Consult Index III: Fields of Study for assistance in locating programs in a specific field.

Eligibility

Eligibility • Recipient must be a member of granting agency Level: graduate/postgraduate, postdoctoral Age: 21 minimum, 45 maximum; Women only; Recipient must be unmarried
Nationality/residency: Must be a citizen or permanent resident of Japan
Foreign nationals resident in the US may apply
Other criteria: Must be fluent in English and have completed a minimum of two years research towards doctorate

If an award restricts eligibility to members, enrollees or graduates of the granting institution, the phrase will be highlighted in bold italics.

Level lists the academic levels at which candidates may apply for an award. The award may be applicable to one or more of the following educational levels: undergraduate, graduate/postgraduate, postdoctoral and professional. Other eligibility requirements are also mentioned here. They may include: minimum or maximum age limits, gender, marital status.

Nationality/residency may specify citizens and/or residents of one or more countries. "Unrestricted" indicates that qualified nationals of any country may apply for the award. If US nationals resident abroad or foreign nationals resident in the US are eligible, it is stated here.

Other criteria explains any other eligibility requirements. Often they concern educational or professional qualifications, language capabilities, membership in societies or organizations, restrictions as to previous contact with the host country. Since space considerations do not allow us to describe requirements in complete detail, it is recommended that the administrative agency be contacted for full information.

Financial Data

Financial data • Average amount per award: $16,000 Total amount to all grantees: $160,000 Award includes: travel, living expenses, research expenses, housing, health insurance

If the information was available at the time of the survey, the projected annual amount of support per award, and the projected annual total amount of support to all grantees is provided. This is followed by a list of items the award includes: tuition, international travel expenses and/or travel within the host country, living expenses, dependents' expenses, research expenses, housing, health insurance, stipend, salary and other items. Unrestricted grants may be used in any way the recipient chooses.

Diversity

Diversity • Special efforts are made to encourage applications from economically disadvantaged; printed literature detailing fellowship program is sent to all members each year

The survey sent to administering agencies requested information on whether special efforts are made to enhance the diversity of the population within the programs. If applications are encouraged from ethnic minorities, women, underrepresented groups, the economically disadvantaged, or the disabled, or if any other pertinent information was given, it is included under this heading.

Additional Information

Additional information • Grant may not be held simultaneously with similar grant from any other organization
URL: http://www.fhs/intpgms.org

This heading is used for information that does not fit other headings, or was not given previously in the entry, but is significant and may prove important to applicants.

The URL (uniform resource locator) subheading indicates the administrative agency's home page address on the World Wide Web.

Application Information

Application information • Deadline: January 1 Notification date: Mid-May Procedure: Must provide statement of purpose and copy of letter of invitation from participating US university or research institute

Deadline for submission of applications is noted here.

Notification date is the date by which the agency will announce award recipients.

Procedure will include any application processes that may be of particular importance to the applicant. However, applicants should contact the administrative agency for application forms and full details.

Planning for Study in the US

Study in the US can be an extraordinary adventure in which the educational experiences do not start or stop at the classroom door. For students, study in the US brings fresh perspectives on educational objectives, career choices, political and economic issues and human relationships. For midcareer professionals and educators, it can point a career in new directions, provide an invigorating change from routine and enhance educators' teaching and research upon their return.

Planning is the most crucial factor in the success of US study and research at all educational levels, and should begin at least one year prior to departure. The choices to be made are many, and require time and thought. Choosing the right institution and program is complex, but can reward you with the experience of a lifetime.

The need for advance planning is especially important when you need financial assistance to achieve your educational or research objectives. Many grants and fellowships are awarded on the basis of competitions that require candidates to begin the application procedure eighteen months or more before departure. In many cases the deadline date for application is one full year before the award begins.

Researching the Options

Funding for US Study: A Guide for International Students and Professionals brings together information on a wide variety of grants that may be used by foreign nationals. It is compiled from a survey of more than 10,000 organizations that offer grants and/or are active in international educational exchange. The book is intended to provide information on those awards for which anyone who meets eligibility criteria may apply. Grants described in the book are offered by the US and foreign governments, colleges and universities, international organizations, professional associations, foundations, corporations, libraries, research centers and binational agencies.

Types of awards offered range from small travel grants to postdoctoral research fellowships intended to cover full costs of research, living and dependents' expenses, international travel and a variety of other expenses. Grants are offered that cover only tuition or living expenses, or that are intended to supplement financial support from other sources. Some awards are totally unrestricted in how they may be used. Duration varies from the length of a conference, to a summer or academic year, up to three or more years.

No matter what your field, this book can help you to tap into the financial resources that are available for study or research in the US. Index III: Fields of Study is the place to begin your search for awards related to your field of study.

The number following each field in Index III corresponds to the entry number of the award and its administering agency in the main text of this book. When you refer to that entry, you will be able to determine whether your qualifications match grant requirements.

Read grant applications and other literature carefully. Funding for US Study: A Guide for International Students and Professionals summarizes major restrictions that apply to each grant described, but these restrictions may change or vary. The entry in this book is only a summary of information on the grant described. Information provided by the administrative agency is the final authority on the specifics of the award. If you have questions after reading the grant application and accompanying literature, contact the administering agency.

Other Resources

Your nearest Educational Advising Center will have additional information on finding funding for study or research in the US. Most centers have general reference material with the addresses and admission requirements of various institutions, as well as information on grants.

They may also have special lectures on admissions and funding possibilities.

To locate the Educational Advising Center nearest you, refer to Appendix: Overseas Educational Advising Centers in this directory or contact the American Embassy, consulate or USIS office in your country.

Calculate Expenses

When figuring your expenses to study or carry out research in the US, be sure to factor in all costs: tuition, housing, food, fees, books, health insurance, travel to and from your home country and the United States, and local travel.

Do not expect to find employment once you arrive in the US. On-campus work employment opportunities are limited and highly competitive. Current US immigration regulations restrict employment outside the university for both international students and their spouses. Wages for teaching and research assistantships at US universities are generally subject to US taxes.

Women and US Study

Despite recent progress, the percentage of women participants in international scholarship programs remains markedly lower than that of men.

The problems and barriers that women face in pursuing international education are wide-ranging. A 22-year-old Chilean graduate student might have to overcome her family's preference for educating only her brothers, or her parents' fears for their only daughter living thousands of miles from home. A 31-year-old Egyptian mother of two seeking a doctorate may encounter resistance at her perceived "selfishness" at uprooting and disrupting her family. And a 43-year-old economist from Kazakhstan who is chosen for advanced training may be thought to be jeopardizing her marriage by leaving behind her husband while she goes abroad. You may well have to deal with similar concerns when you announce your own intention to study abroad, as many women have before you.

Family and personal concerns often weigh heavily in women's professional decisions. Societal norms and expectations—and restrictions and taboos—vary from country to country, from city to rural areas, and even from family to family within the same community. While there are strategies for helping to overcome barriers, such tremendous diversity demands that every woman who decides to pursue international educational opportunities necessarily address these issues within her own specific cultural and familial context.

It is important to focus on the positive aspects of study abroad. Pursuing advanced education overseas will benefit not only you, but also your family, and broadly speaking, perhaps even your country. Upon your return you will be better prepared to serve in your chosen profession, and you many have a significant impact on your community in your chosen field.

For information on funding sources which especially encourage women applicants, see Index V.

For practical information for women contemplating study or research in the US, read Study Abroad: you can get there from here! available free from IIE Books, PO Box 371, Annapolis Junction, MD 20701.

Highlights from Open Doors

Individuals planning study in the United States will find useful information in this section on the numbers, national origin, and academic level of international students enrolled at US colleges and universities—and overall data on their sources of funding.

IIE conducts an annual statistical survey of international students enrolled for academic credit in US higher educational institutions, published as Open Doors. Open Doors statistical surveys are made possible by grant support from the U.S. Information Agency. The research is conducted by the IIE Research Division with the guidance of the International Education Data Collection Committee, composed of representatives of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers (AACRAO), the Institute of International Education, and NAFSA: Association of International Educators.

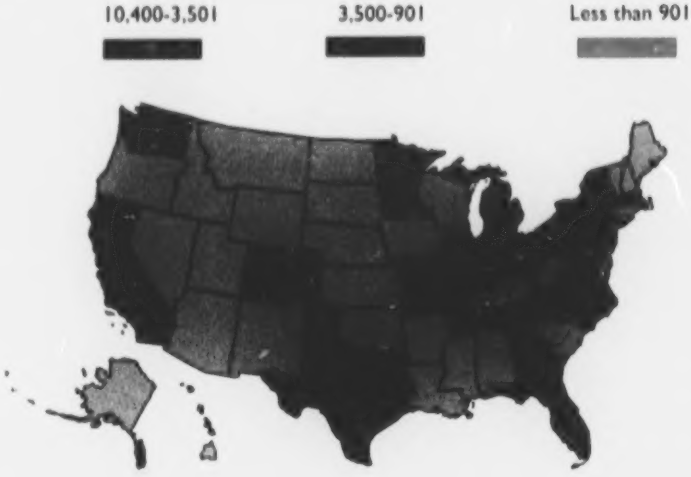
HOST STATES FOR FOREIGN SCHOLARS, 1994/95



Foreign Student Enrollments by Country of Origin

COUNTRIES

- Japan has displaced China as the leading country of origin for foreign students studying in the United States this year. Japan's modest rate of increase (3% in 1994/95 and 2% in 1993/94), however, is far smaller than that seen over the past decade. Among the most significant Asian places of origin for U.S.-bound students, only Thailand showed an increase in its rate of U.S. enrollments, from 10% in 1993/94 to 14% this year. China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka, Malaysia and the Philippines showed declining enrollments. From Indonesia enrollments were essentially level (1%) compared with last year's 7.5% enrollment increase.

- Enrollments from many of the leading countries within Western Europe are down this year. The United Kingdom, France, Spain and Greece all had fewer students in the United States. While there was a 1% increase in German students this year, it represents a drop from the 8% increase noted last year. Unlike numbers from Western Europe, those from Eastern European countries are uniformly up. The number of students from Russia has increased sharply, as have enrollments from Poland, Romania and Bulgaria. The number of students from the Ukraine has more than doubled, and for most of the other countries within the region percentage increases are above 10%.

- This year, breaking with a trend observed since 1980/81, enrollments of students from the Middle East and Egypt increased. Countries which fought against Iraq in the Gulf War appear to have increased enrollments in the United States. These include Turkey (23%), Kuwait (11%), Saudi Arabia (9.5%), the UAE (24%) and Egypt (2.6%). It remains to be seen whether or not this year's general increases among our Gulf War allies will be sustained in the future, reversing an extended period of falling or stagnant enrollments from many of these countries.

- In the years since the signing of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), the number of Mexican students studying in the United States has grown by almost 20%. While there have also been increases in enrollments from other Central and South American countries, the numbers have not been as large. The number of students from Canada, the other signer of NAFTA, has increased 8% over the same period of time; this year, however, enrollments from Canada are stable. Collectively, Canada and Mexico account for 45% of foreign student enrollments from the Western Hemisphere.

Map of the United States

The map on the following pages shows the geographic location of the 50 states of the United States of America.

The states are identified by their two letter US Post Office abbreviations, for two reasons.

- Two-letter US Post Office abbreviations are used consistently throughout this book to identify states as part of addresses, as is typically done in the United States.
- The two-letter US Post Office abbreviations are more legible on a small map.

US Higher Educational Institutions

IIE Books licensed data in this section from the College Board, a US national nonprofit association of universities, colleges and schools that annually surveys all US higher educational institutions. IIE requested the admissions information that we believed would be most helpful to users of Funding for US Study from the Annual Survey of Colleges data. For price and order information on College Board publications, including the annual College Handbook Foreign Student Supplement, contact College Board Publications, Box 886, New York NY 10101-0886 USA. This chapter is divided into two sections: Undergraduate and Graduate.

Definition of terms:

Control/degrees offered: Indicates whether the institution is private (Pr) or public (Pu). In the Undergraduate section, degrees offered are either two-year associate degrees (A), four-year bachelor's degrees (B), or both (AB). Enrollment is total undergraduate enrollment, including both US and international students.

In the Graduate section, degrees offered are master's degrees (M), doctoral degrees (D), or first professional degrees (F). Enrollment is total graduate enrollment, including both US and international students.

In both sections, Application deadline is typically the last date by which the institution will accept admissions forms, test scores and transcripts. NA means information is not available. None means that there is no deadline. Tuition and fees are for the nine-month academic year. Living costs are either for the nine-month academic year ($0,000) or on a monthly basis ($000). When made available by the institution, international student financial aid data are also provided.

Appendix:
Overseas Educational Advising Centers

Educational advising centers that provide information on US higher education are located in most of the world's nations. The US Information Service (USIS) offices, Fulbright Commissions, AMIDEAST and IIE offices, and other organizations listed in this appendix offer students and professionals guidance on application to the US Information Agency (USIA) Fulbright Program and on other grant and fellowship programs. Office hours vary, so it is best to contact the center before visiting.

The Overseas Educational Advising Centers appendix is published with the gracious permission of the College Board. The data is taken from the 1995-96 Directory of Overseas Educational Advising Centers, published in 1995 by the College Entrance Examination Board. The Directory is produced by the College Board Office of International Education in cooperation with the Advising, Teaching, and Specialized Programs Division of the United States Information Agency (USIA). This annual publication is available for purchase to US universities and others who need to provide information to overseas advising centers. Contact College Board Publications, Box 886, New York NY 10101, for current price and order information. A computer diskette version is available as part of the International Recruitment Kit. Contact the College Board at 202-332-1480 for further information.

Appendix: Member Organizations

European Union EU

15 members

Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, United Kingdom

The main function of the European Union is to lay the foundation for an ever-closer union between the peoples of Europe by creating an area without internal frontiers. To achieve this, the European Union seeks to strengthen economic and social cohesion by establishing economic unity through a single currency and social unity through a citizenship of the Union. The European Union also works to project the Union as a cohesive unit to the rest of the world, through the Common Foreign and Security Policy, and, eventually, hopes to institute a common defence policy.

North Atlantic Treaty Organization NATO

16 members

Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Turkey, United Kingdom, United States

Founded on the principles of democracy, individual liberty and the rule of law, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) is a defensive alliance based on political and military cooperation among independent member countries. Alliance members are committed to safeguarding the freedom, common heritage and civilization of their peoples.

Newly Independent States NIS

12 members

Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Georgia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Moldova, Russia, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, Ukraine, Uzbekistan

As a result of the collapse of the Soviet Union in December 1991 all of the 15 former republics of the Soviet Union became independent. Excluding the three Baltic republics (Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia), the twelve member states are now called the NIS (Newly Independent States) and are implementing reforms in a bid to achieve democratization in the political sphere and a market economy in the economic sphere.

Organization of American States OAS

35 members

Antiga and Barbuda, Argentina, Bahamas, Barbados, Belize, Bolivia, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba (by resolution of the Eighth Meeting of Consultation of Ministers of Foreign Affairs [1962] the current Government of Cuba is excluded from participation in the OAS), Dominica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Grenada, Guatemala, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Jamaica, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Saint Lucia, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, Suriname, St Kitts and Nevis, Trinidad and Tobago, United States of America, Uruguay, Venezuela

The basic purposes of the Organization of American States (OAS) are to strengthen the peace and security of the continent by promoting and consolidating representative democracy through nonintervention, ensuring the pacific settlement of disputes that may arise among the Member States, providing for common action on the part of those States in the event of aggression, promoting, by cooperative action, their economic, social and cultural development, and achieving an effective limitation of conventional weapons that will make it possible to devote the largest amount of resources to the economic and social development of the Member States.

United Nations Educational, Scientific & Cultural Organization UNESCO

Index VIII: Countries of Origin

This index provides a guide to awards intended to assist individuals from a specific country, region or group of nations in a more detailed breakdown than the geographical region book sort. For instance, an award designated for individuals from Russia and Poland will be listed in the Eastern Europe section, but listed under each country in this index.

References are to sequential book entry numbers, not to the page on which the entry appears.

Funding for United States Study

An indispensable resource for study & research in the U.S. for international students and professionals

Funding for U.S. Study features detailed descriptions of more than 600 fellowships, grants, scholarships and paid internships for undergraduates, graduate students and postdoctoral students as well as working professionals. The sponsors of all awards welcome applications from foreign nationals and a substantial number of awards are specifically intended for international use.

Sponsors are U.S. and foreign governments, colleges and universities, educational associations, libraries, research centers, foundations, corporations and other organizations.

Each award description includes:

- Name, address, telephone and fax numbers and E-mail address of the award-granting agency
- Purpose of the award
- Amount and type of financial support
- Location for use
- Number of awards granted each year
- Eligibility requirements, restrictions and duration of award
- Application deadline and notification date
- How to apply

The book is arranged by country of origin of potential applicants. Indexes organize the awards by sponsoring institution, field of study, academic level and type of award, amount of support, destination, and any special conditions.

The largest U.S. higher education exchange agency, IIE is a nonprofit organization with over 650 college and university members in the U.S. and abroad.
